

Exhibition Series – Since June 2002, transformer has presented the work of over 500 emerging visual artists in over 35 comprehensive exhibitions and projects. In addition to our group exhibition formats, transformer's exhibition series offers a unique, annual solo exhibition program exclusively for DC based emerging artists. transformer pays artists' honoraria, covers costs in presenting exhibitions, and never charges artists fees. We support artists in their ideas and work on every level possible.

The Framework Panel Series – Launched in December 2002, this program seeks to develop critical arts dialogue within the community through panel discussions on timely topics. Panels have been held at The Corcoran College of Art, The Goethe Institut, The Warehouse Theater, and Provisions Library on topics such as the role of the curator, the role of community organizations in supporting artists, artist as activist, and more.

Professional Development Workshops – transformer coordinates and hosts a series of annual leadership workshops for the DC Commission on the Arts' Young Artist Grant Awardees featuring area arts professionals and other community leaders.

The Exercises For Emerging Artists – Launched in March 2004, the Exercises is a peer critique and mentorship program for emerging artists. Consisting of a series of critiques at transformer over several months, participating artists gather with established artists and curators to discuss a new body of work, its presentation and other issues including access to galleries, grants, residencies, and more. The Exercises culminates in an annual summer exhibition.
